IS THIS THE FACE OF AN INSANE MAN?

Harry Thaw sketched in court last week.

The twelve jurors in Harry Thaw's sanity trial have a difficult task. While not one of them is an expert on mental disorders they must decide a question on which experts are in sharp disagreement. Several attorneys of the highest standing have testified that Thaw is sane. Several others with equal professional ability believe Stanford White's slayer hopelessly insane.

THE FIREWORKS

Apparently nearly every body in the Warren District was jammed into the square in front of the Phelps Dodge store last evening, to witness the mammoth pyrotechnical display which was sent off from Copper Queen Hill. Enjoyment of the display, which undoubtedly exceeded anything of its kind ever attempted in this section of the Southwest, was enhanced by the capable renditions of the C. & A. band from its position on the veranda of the Phelps Dodge store.

The display opened with a fixed-piece portrait of George Washington, the depiction in fireworks of the familiar features of the Father of his country eliciting many enthusiastic exclamations of admiration from the throngs below. "Niagara Falls," a marvelously realistic representation of the great falls of the Canadian border of New York State, alone was worth waiting long to see. The sky rockets, Roman lights, Oriental showers, mammoth pin-wheels and many other newer variations of pyrotechnic creations, formed a rare combination of starry lights and fiery streamers which kept the heavens alive with a splendor well fitting the climax of a day distinguished by the acme of national patriotism manifest in a wonderful exemplification of local loyalty and pride.

Among the merry crowds which lingered until the "Good Night" piece had bade them "Au Revoir," were heard nothing but comments of cordial praise for the display itself, and the persevering efforts of those who made this and the other events of the holiday component features of a distinct triumph.

'AFTER FIVE' MOST LAUGHABLE COMEDY

"After Five" is a scream of excellent comedy. Edward Ables, in the leading role of Ted Ewing, is altogether his old self and the keenness of the wit of the piece is handled to the satisfaction of all who see the piece.

The picture is in five parts and is the production of the Lasky studios. It is the story of a young man who wishes to meet a fatal end in order to give his sweetheart the benefits from a life insurance policy, made in her name. He enters into an agreement with a band to put him out of the way. In the meantime he makes considerable money and desires to end the agreement. The situation, throughout, are exceedingly laughable, and afford a fine entertainment.

Frank Schulte (top) and Johnny Evers.

Of the wonderful Chicago Cubs franchise that was built up for years ago only two of its members still are in the major leagues. They are Frank Schulte, 39, an infielder, and Johnny Evers, 38, a shortstop.

RUSSIAN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION GROWS

PETROGRAD, July 5.—The Russian-American Association which, as previously announced in these dispatches, was organized here in April to foster commercial and social relations between the two countries, has attracted over a hundred workers to its ranks, among whom are a number of prominent public men.

Baron R. R. Rosen, former ambassador at Washington, was elected president of the Association, and A. N. Izvolsky his assistant. The members of the committee are distinguished Russian business men and social workers, such as E. N. Barabot-de-Marny, A. I. Halperin, F. A. Ivanov, N. S. Kurnakov, D. D. Protodopov and H. B. Tschakowski. At the first meeting the former Consul General in New York, Mr. Ladizenski, expressed the opinion that this association undoubtedly would meet with great favor in America. Even at the time of the Russo-Japanese war, notwithstanding the acrimony aimed against Russia, the American statesmen showed an interest in Russia and were ready to establish friendly relations, he said.

Prof. Muijev expressed a desire to organize an exchange of professors between America and Russia. D. D. Protodopov added the suggestion of organizing excursions to the United States. N. A. Okunev, and others pointed out the necessity of organizing an association in New York, similar to that of Petrograd. Many members of the Petrograd association are acquainted with well-known American public workers, and they were asked by the chairman to lay the foundation for the organization of a like association in America. The suggestion that classes in English be formed in connection with this organization in Petrograd met with great favor.

SUBMARINE MOTION PICTURES HERE SOON

The most marvelous thing accomplished in cinematography since that science was invented are the Williamson Submarine Motion Pictures. They will appear at the Orpheum Wednesday. What Jules Verne's vivid imagination did not quite succeed in painting for the mental eye in his classic description of a trip beneath the sea, are here pictured most fascinatingly. The pictures seem to take one to the bottom of the ocean, where one wanders around as freely as in the air, takes a ramble in Neptune's botanical gardens, becomes acquainted with the family life of the fishes, visits wrecks of the last century and finally watches with breathless interest a fight to the death between a man and a tiger of the sea—a huge, blue, thrasher shark. These records of the actual conditions of the floor of the ocean are not merely something new—they are milestones on the road of cinematographic progress.

These remarkable examples of deep-sea photography, these first and only pictures ever made at the bottom of the ocean, begin with scenes showing how the wonderful apparatus which made possible the taking of Submarine Pictures is utilized and handled, a peep into the marvelous invention of deep-sea picture making. Then come scenes showing the native divers plunging from their boats to follow to the bottom of the crystal sea the coins thrown to them by tourists on an ocean liner. The audience is next taken under the ocean in the steel submarine photographic chamber, and here we see the divers scrambling for the elusive pennies on the very bed of the ocean.

Then begins a marvelous under water journey of one hundred miles along the floor of the ocean that is like the realization of an engrossing fairy tale. A wonderful and ever changing panorama is revealed of a world heretofore unknown to man. During this exciting journey you visit the world famous marine gardens of the Bahamas. Strange fish, never seen before, swim past the camera chamber. The thrilling death battle between a daring swimmer armed only with a knife, and a twenty-four foot shark forms the sensational climax of these wonderful pictures.

STROUER AND BAY GO TEN ROUNDS TO DRAW BEFORE SMALL CROWD

Lack of Attendance Mars What Would Have Been a Very Interesting Contest in Naco Sunday Afternoon.

Before a very small crowd, Sunday afternoon, in Naco, Frankie Bay and Larry Strover worked ten rounds to a draw. The boxers were, undoubtedly, disheartened by the attendance and did not show to the best of their ability. The exhibition was clean throughout and proved to the fans that under the proper circumstances they would put up an extra good battle.

The contest was devoted almost entirely to Bay's leading and Strover's clever boxing. Neither boy was hurt to any extent, though Strover came into contact with Bay's right and received a black eye.

The crowd in Naco was large. A great many people came from Douglas to see the bout, a large percentage, however, had their attention diverted by other amusements in the border town, which accounts for the very poor attendance.
